Beckage attorney Daniel Parziale, Esq., CIPP/US was recently interviewed by The National Association of Surety Bond Producers \(NASBP\) and featured in an article, 9-1-1 for Cybercrime in the Construction Industry. Dan discusses the two major forms of cyber risk the construction industry faces, including ransomware events and wire transfer fraud, and how construction businesses can prepare for and respond to cyberattacks.

“The bad guys aren’t only going after entities that manage social security numbers or credit card numbers,” Parziale says. “They’re going after operations where the interruption to business provides leverage and might be critical for some construction industry sectors.”
